ARTEMUS WARD ON REORGANIZATION. Artemus Ward, in a recent letter, thus gives an idea of reorganization: that the mother was dependent wholly or in part appon the deceased for support. Fifth. Sisters un-I have never attempted to reorganize my wife but once. I shall never attempt it again. I'd bin to a public dinner, and had allowed myself into der sixteen years of age, of such deceased persons, dependent on the latter wholly or in part for sup-port, provided there are no rightful claimants of drinkin' several people's health, and wishing to make them as robust as possible, I continued drinkin their health until my own became affected. by the act of 25th June, 1864, in addition to the payment for horses lost in battle belonging to offices, non-commissioned officers and privates since the The consekens was I presented myself at Betsey's bedside, late of night, with considerable liquor con-cealed about my person. I had got possession of a beginning of the rebellion, extends to and embra-ces all cases of the loss of horses by any officer, nun-commissioned officer or private in the military horse-whip on my way home. Rememberin' some cranky observations of Mrs. Ward's in the morning, I snapt the whip putty lively, and in a loud voice said "Betsy you need reorganizin." I have come Betsy," I continued crackin the whip over hosswhip over me sov ril times: and when I woke up I found she had. I haint drunk much of anything since, and if ever I have any reorganizia
